Gilson Road Cemetery is one of the most haunted places in New Hampshire. Situated in an isolated area of Nashua, this cemetery holds the remains of several individuals who died under mysterious or tragic circumstances. Some stories suggest it served as a mass grave for murder victims or suicides. Others claim it's a site of paranormal activity, such as apparitions, voices, feelings of coldness, or unease.

Gilson Road Cemetery dates back to the 18th century and is named after the Gilson family, who owned the surrounding land. Among the graves is that of Betsey Gilson, who died in 1791 at the age of 22, and her son John, who died in 1794 at the age of 4. The cause of their deaths is unknown, but some believe they fell victim to illness or poisoning. Other members of the Gilson family are also buried in the cemetery, along with soldiers from the Revolutionary War and the Civil War.

Gilson Road Cemetery is reputed to be haunted by the spirits of these deceased individuals, who manifest themselves in various ways. Some visitors have reported seeing shadows, silhouettes, or faces in the cemetery, especially at night. Others have heard strange noises, such as crying, laughter, whispers, or screams. Some have even felt physical contact, such as caresses, pinches, or blows.
