

Crescent-shaped UFO caught near the Space Station

On December 6, 2020, International Space Station was visited by UFO. On these images caught by NASA cameras, we can see a golden crescent-shaped UFO come close to the Space Station.

According to the ufologist Scott C. Waring, the man who discovered this UFO, aliens are interested by spatial progress.

He explains on his blog:

“The object is golden in color and shaped unlike anything I have ever seen before. The UFO was not cloaked or invisible, but instead was hiding in the darkness not far from the space station. When the light over the earth began to hit the space station...the light also hit the UFO, causing it to become visible from the darkness below. I have explained that some aliens are extremely advanced and are equally lazy at manual labor...so they grow their ships...not all species but many. Biomechanical ships, living, but made to serve. The shape of this UFO off the bow of the space station makes me think it too...had been grown. This is 100% proof that aliens are watching humanity's activities in space...very closely...about 70 meters away to be exact.”
