

Mysterious Rectangle-shaped Object Spotted in the Sky over Austin, TX

A witness residing in Austin, Texas, recently made an intriguing observation in the night sky. On May 9, 2023, while sitting on their balcony and stargazing, they spotted a mysterious object moving at high speed.

The witness describes the object as an almost flat rectangle with apparent lights on its bottom section. They believe these lights may have been some form of illumination, although they cannot be certain. The sighting lasted for a very brief duration, approximately less than 10 seconds.

What caught the witness's attention was the peculiar behavior of the object. It rocked strangely and seemed to be attempting to blend in with the surroundings, as if equipped with a camouflage system. However, despite its efforts, it failed to go unnoticed by the witness.

Regretting not having been able to capture any images or videos of the incident, the witness mentions having their phone in hand at the time of the sighting, but they were occupied listening to music. Since the event, it has been constantly on their mind, and they feel the need to share their account with others without being labeled as crazy.
