Australia - The mystery of Somerton Man

The case of the Somerton Man refers to an unsolved mystery surrounding an unidentified man found dead on Somerton Beach in Adelaide, Australia on December 1, 1948. The circumstances surrounding his death have remained a mystery to this day.

div]:bg-bg-300 [&_pre]:-mr-4 md:[&_pre]:-mr-9">_*]:min-w-0">

The body of the well-dressed man was discovered propped up against a seawa exact cause of death was never formally established. The man carried no identifi

The initial investigation revealed one puzzling clue: a secret pocket sewn into th words Tamam Shud ("It is ended" or "Finished" in Persian) written on it. Mont of Omar Khayyam, to police. Inside was also a handwritten code that has never

The Somerton Man's identity has never been conclusively established. In 2021, with no definitive results. In 2010, Professor Derek Abbott from the Universi engineer from Melbourne, but this remains an unverified hypothesis.

More recently in 2023, a strange birthday message and flowers left on a sculpt Carl Josef Halban. However, this lead remains unconfirmed as of now.

Nearly 75 years after the events, the Somerton Man case remains one of Austra and the reasons behind his enigmatic death.

Sources

© Activité-Paranormale 2009-2026

- fr.wikipedia.org

News in brief - 31 mai 2024 - Rael2012 - CC BY 2.5

© Activité-Paranormale 2009-2026