

Human-like statue discovered on Mars!

On June 4, 2022, renowned ufologist Scott C. Waring made an intriguing discovery that is sparking debates about the possibility of ancient life on Mars. Through a careful analysis of a photograph taken on the Red Planet, Waring claims to have identified a statue that strikingly resembles a human sculpture, along with structures that could be remnants of a long-lost Martian civilization.

In his announcement, Scott C. Waring describes his discovery with palpable enthusiasm. According to him, the photograph reveals a statue of a boy lying on its side, with a level of detail that leaves little room for doubt about its artificial origin. He excitedly points out the striking resemblance to Renaissance sculptures, particularly those of Leonardo da Vinci, highlighting the well-defined head, the loose shirt, the baggy 1920s-style pants, as well as the clearly discernible arms and legs.

But the statue is not the only find that caught the ufologist's attention. Waring also identified what he believes to be a doorway, similar to one he had discovered a few weeks earlier. This doorway appears to be carved into layers of stone, resembling the steps of an ancient pyramid. According to Waring, these features could indicate the existence of complex architecture on Mars, remnants of an advanced civilization.

In addition to the statue and the doorway, Waring claims to have spotted other intriguing ruins, including what he describes as two disks parked on top of a hill. If these objects are indeed artificial, they would provide further evidence supporting the hypothesis of ancient intelligent activity on Mars.
