A Brilliant Musical Career

After the war, Inge married a composer, and together they wrote songs that found their way into the hearts of many generations. This period of her life was filled with creativity and passion for music, which stayed with her throughout her life.

An Unexpected Return to Music

Sixty years later, Inge decided to reconnect with her musical passion, but this time, she chose a surprising path: heavy metal. Collaborating with renowned classical musicians Lucia Caruso and Pedro da Silva, known as the TritoneKings, she created a unique fusion of styles. This bold mix reflects her determination to defy conventions and prove that music has no age or genre limits.
